

D-Link Appoints Jacky Chang, Managing Director, Australia and New Zealand

New hire displays D-Link's commitment to growing the networking business together with partners in the region

SYDNEY, Australia — April 10, 2013 — D-Link, the end-to-end networking and surveillance solutions provider, has today announced the appointment of Jacky Chang as the Managing Director of D-Link Australia and New Zealand.

Based in Sydney, Jacky's key focus will be on driving D-Link and its partners shared vision and strategies for D-Link's range of networking solutions as well as cementing D-Link's position as a dominant market leader.

Widely respected in the IT sector, Chang has 16 years of D-Link service, starting with the company in 1996. By 2006, he became regional director of emerging markets and business development followed by an appointment in 2012 as D-Link VP of South Asia where his role extended to now include Managing Director Australia and New Zealand.

Commenting on Chang's appointment, Maurice Famularo, Marketing Director for D-Link Australia and New Zealand said, "Jacky's appointment to Managing Director for Australia and New Zealand comes at a pivotal time for D-Link as we continue to expand our networking, broadband and wireless technology capabilities."

"D-Link is fast growing company, with an expanding range of networking products for businesses and enterprises that are really unique. My focus will be on further growing the business through close associations with our channel partners and customers in the ANZ market. One of my key goals will be to look at further improvements where we can work smarter and faster, and provide greater value to our customers" said Jacky Chang.
